WORKING PAPER SERIES: UNEARTHING AND AMPLIFYING PLANNING IN THE SOUTH

CALLING ALL THINKERS, PRACTITIONERS, and others working in and/or for cities and surrounding regions, to harness the platform provided by the Oxford Urbanists, to Unearth Planning in South Asia- contribute, disseminate knowledge, and invite feedback.

For this working paper series, we are looking to publish short write ups that explore, investigate, demystify and unearth planning practice, theory, principles which are lesser known or popular without sufficient truth or knowledge or facts. These could include (and are not limited to) origins of planning in a city, region, country, or popular planning practice with an uncommon fact or knowledge associate with the same.

Contributions are invited from and/or for countries of India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Myanmar, Nepal, Bhutan, Maldives, Sri Lanka, Afghanistan.

If you have a floating idea, evidence, narrative aligned with the theme of the working paper series, send us your application. A complete application, titled: - Unearth Planning in the South: Your Name, shall include:

1. Pitch of proposed contribution (500-600 words maximum). The pitch shall address the following points:
 - a. topic and geographic area you want to explore
 - b. why you think it is important for global audience
 - c. the writing form/ structure of your piece
 - d. what experiences/expertise qualifies you to write about the topic you propose
2. Brief bio of author (150-200 words maximum)

Interested contributors, may submit their application to:
